Ohio Girl is Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. H. B. Hopson, 1419 East 88th St., Cleveland, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Leona Mae. She was fretful, fussy, suffered a lot from constipation."

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly, made her bright and happy again. We have used it for over a year."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headachiness, to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened. For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

Healthy Now

"My thirteen-year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. We are recommending the Vegetable Compound to other school girls who need it. MYSTERIOUS WAYE

Author of
BEAU GESTE
BEAU IDEAL

(Copyright, 1931, by Frederick A. Stokes Co.)

SYNOPSIS
Among the patients at Dr. Charters' nursing home is Marjorie Lauderdel, not yet 21. She can not understand why she became ill immediately upon coming to her uncle's home. Her aunt, Mrs. Lauderdel, was accompanied by Dr. Charters' nurse, and the doctor's secret was hidden until a stranger brought him and brings up the case. "Spider Schiltz," the intruder says, "demands that he be taken to the home and an alibi provided. Spider Schiltz! It was a tramp, Chuck Dorson whom the doctor robbed of their shares of the Clair diamond haul in America. How much does the doctor know? Dropping the matter, Charters agrees to admit 'Mr. John Waye' rather than be exposed as a crook. At breakfast next morning Waye gasps, 'Rosemary! Rosemary!' when he sees Marjorie.

CHAPTER 5
Introductions
JOHN WAYE took his gaze from the girl and looked at her neighbor, and the matron made introduction.
"Mr. Waye—Colonel Campbell, our oldest inhabitant," she added. "Old inhabitant!" snapped Colonel Campbell. "I'm still in my fifties."
"Ah," laughed the matron. "I meant to say ye're our—"
"Monarch of the Glen," suggested Mr. Waye, and began to recite.
"The stag at eve had drunk his fill,"
he said, a remark the least well-received by reason of the fact that all knew the colonel to be a noted dipsomaniac who was learning the value of a dietary that included other things besides whisky.
Marjorie Lauderdel, with a sharp look at Mr. Waye, decided that he had spoken in all innocence—perhaps.
"Haven't we met before?" said a soft voice on Mr. Waye's right.
"Mr. Waye—Miss Skinner," murmured the matron.
"Met before, what, madam?" asked Mr. Waye.
"Before this," replied Miss Skinner sharply.
"Before this assembly, madam? Yes, we have met before this assembly."
"Mad as a hatter," chirped Miss Skinner, the rather cross-looking little lady, who sat on the other side of Mr. Waye, and, taking her empty plate to the sideboard, returned to another seat, as far as possible from the one she had vacated.
After breakfast, having read the morning paper with deepest interest, John Waye, talking audibly and pleasantly to himself, strolled about the grounds of the Monastery, incidentally making a complete tour of the great high wall that entirely surrounded them.
The Monastery grounds were really an island with a moat, the wall, the only normal access to the monastery being by the gatehouse bridge.
Beneath the archway, above which was a tower, high strong iron gates prevented access to the bridge itself, while at the far end of the bridge, a small door deep-set in a stone wall, prevented access from without, as well as egress from within.
It would be as difficult for an unauthorized person to leave this place as it would be to leave a jail.
A jail, John Waye shuddered. As he approached the great iron gates, a huge man came out from a door in the gatehouse and eyed Mr. Waye inquiringly.
"Good morning," said the latter. "You haven't seen my elephant, have you?"
"Elephant, sir?" replied the man reflectively. "What color elephant might it be, sir? Pinkish?"
"Oh, dear me, no. White as the driven—er—donkey."
"Well, I haven't ackerly seen it, sir. Only me own white elephant, an' I can't lose 'er."
"Oh, well, if you're sure, I won't bother about it. I'll just go for a walk, if you'll kindly open the gates for me. I can go out if I want to, I suppose, can't I?"
"Why, certainly, sir. Everybody comes and goes as free as air—half-way in the doctor says so."
"The gate-keeper who may go out, and who may not, eh?"
"Well, sir, in a manner of speaking. Yer see, sir, there's some gents and ladies as might walk so fur that they couldn't get back 'jes' like your white elephant."
Suddenly the face of Mr. John Waye underwent a remarkable change and as he produced a note-case from his pocket, the gate-keeper thought he looked less idiotic.
John Waye, extracting a piece of paper, suggested that the gate-keeper might be able to decipher the writing thereon. It was a five-pound note.
"No, sir, no matter 'ow big," "An' er comes the doctor himself," he added as Dr. Charters, the morning paper in his hand, approached the gate-house.
"Good morning, Mr. Waye," he said breezily. "Going out for a walk?"
"Yes, doctor. I was thinking of taking a stroll across the meadows."
"Wonderful old gate-house, isn't it?" observed the doctor. "Strong?"
"Very," agreed Mr. Waye. "Wonderful old gate-keeper, too. Also strong."
The gate-keeper smiled and entered the gate-house, returned bearing a couple of large keys, and proceeded to open the inner and outer pair of gates.
Accompanied by the doctor, John Waye crossed the bridge, halted and gazed around.
"No," he said slowly. "No, I don't think I'll go out—today, at any rate. It seems to have disappeared altogether. Don't you wish yours would, doctor?"
"My what?" inquired Dr. Charters.
"Your white elephant."
The two men eyed each other. "Perhaps it will," observed the doctor, as he turned away.
Returning to his study, Dr. Charters rang for his secretary.
"Find sister and matron," he said. "I want to see them both."
A minute or two later the two women entered together.
"Good morning, sister. Glad to see you back again. Good morning, matron," said the doctor absently, looking up from his letters. Sit down.
"Seen Mr. Waye yet, sister?" he continued a minute later. "The patient who came in while you were away."
"No, doctor, not yet..."
"Oh, you will today. I expect. You'll find him a very pleasant chap. Queer, but probably harmless. We must watch him carefully. Humor him... And let me know if he's developing any sort of silent delusion. His great trouble at the moment is that he has lost his elephant."
To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge is worried by Katherine's reaction to the letter from her husband.

I FOUND Katherine breakfasting from a tray laid upon a table on the little upper veranda. Beside her, in her carriage pink and white and altogether adorable, lay the little new princess of our home. Beyond the closed door I could hear the voices of my young son and his cousin, as they scrambled through their dressing for breakfast.

"Lo, darling!" Katherine's voice had a lilt in it, and her eyes were stary. I realized, suddenly, that I had heard that lilt since that light in her eyes, ever since the coming of my small daughter. I reflected that not once since Katherine had been taken into her care this wee wonder of wonders which had come to me, had I heard in her voice the despairing note which had been there when on the last Christmas Eve, she had gone to bed, rather than torture herself with the sight of the Christmas celebration of a happy home.

There could be only one explanation for this. The thwarted motherhood, which was her tragedy was finding solace and outlet in her care and love for my baby. I ought to have been genuinely happy for her. I was. I told myself fiercely, but I could not disguise the fact that I was fighting with my altruism, was a fighting to argue that I could not give a name to it, but which I knew instinctively, was unworthy of me.

I hurried into speech, that I no longer might face that shadowy something in my own soul which, I felt, must be met and routed sooner or later.

"Katherine, a sorrowing Katherine," I said with my two letters, addressed down, beside the plate. Then I turned abruptly to the carriage where my wee daughter lay with wide-open eyes regarding—what? I made the foolish observation common to all mothers.

"She's looking at me, Katherine! I believe she knows me!"

I expected the gentle patting with which she had applied to similar declarations on my part since our homecoming, but she made no answer. Then on my young daughter's face there appeared a most beautiful smile, and definitely I proclaimed another foundationless banality.

"I tell you she's smiling at me, and you needn't tell me it's a cold pain either. She isn't drawing up her feet at all. Come and look at her!"

I had forgotten the letters I had brought to her, but I turned alarmed at the strained, tortured voice which answered my summons. "Sorry—I didn't hear, Madge!"—the word was a cry. "Will you stay with the baby a few minutes and—may I go into your room?"

"Of course," I said hastily, "and—don't worry! I'll see to the boys, and everything."

Worse Than Death?

"Thank you!" She hurried away, and as I stepped to the table to clear her tray away, and set it in the hall for Katie to take down, I saw that the letter from Hal Meredith, now turned superscription upward, lay unopened beside her plate. It was the other letter, the one from South America, though not in Jack's handwriting, which had sent her, white-lipped and trembling, into my room.

My own hands were not wholly free from tremor as I laid Hal Meredith's letter at the back of the table. What could have been the contents of that letter? Katherine is the most controlled woman I know, for to her own unusual natural poise she had added her years of professional training. I know that only something horrible to her could have caused her to rush away so hurriedly.

Could it be that Jack was dead? My pulse seemed to stop, then raced again as I realized that a normal woman's reaction to news of death or terrible illness would not have been the one she had displayed. I was Jack's kinswoman and her nearest woman friend—she would have turned to me with the news, have clung instinctively to me in our common sorrow.

No, it was something else—something perhaps worse than death—to her—which had sent her to cover like a wounded animal. All I could do, though I longed to go to her, was to stand aside, protect her solitude and attend to the duties which she had left behind her.

Junior Asks a Question

The door behind me opened quietly, and Junior and Roderick came tiptoeing out. I smiled to myself as I contrasted their entrance with the noisy demonstration of the Christmas celebration of a happy home.

There could be only one explanation for this. The thwarted motherhood, which was her tragedy was finding solace and outlet in her care and love for my baby. I ought to have been genuinely happy for her. I was. I told myself fiercely, but I could not disguise the fact that I was fighting with my altruism, was a fighting to argue that I could not give a name to it, but which I knew instinctively, was unworthy of me.

I hurried into speech, that I no longer might face that shadowy something in my own soul which, I felt, must be met and routed sooner or later.

"Katherine, a sorrowing Katherine," I said with my two letters, addressed down, beside the plate. Then I turned abruptly to the carriage where my wee daughter lay with wide-open eyes regarding—what? I made the foolish observation common to all mothers.

"She's looking at me, Katherine! I believe she knows me!"

I expected the gentle patting with which she had applied to similar declarations on my part since our homecoming, but she made no answer. Then on my young daughter's face there appeared a most beautiful smile, and definitely I proclaimed another foundationless banality.

"I tell you she's smiling at me, and you needn't tell me it's a cold pain either. She isn't drawing up her feet at all. Come and look at her!"

I had forgotten the letters I had brought to her, but I turned alarmed at the strained, tortured voice which answered my summons. "Sorry—I didn't hear, Madge!"—the word was a cry. "Will you stay with the baby a few minutes and—may I go into your room?"

"Of course," I said hastily, "and—don't worry! I'll see to the boys, and everything."

Worse Than Death?

"Thank you!" She hurried away, and as I stepped to the table to clear her tray away, and set it in the hall for Katie to take down, I saw that the letter from Hal Meredith, now turned superscription upward, lay unopened beside her plate. It was the other letter, the one from South America, though not in Jack's handwriting, which had sent her, white-lipped and trembling, into my room.

My own hands were not wholly free from tremor as I laid Hal Meredith's letter at the back of the table. What could have been the contents of that letter? Katherine is the most controlled woman I know, for to her own unusual natural poise she had added her years of professional training. I know that only something horrible to her could have caused her to rush away so hurriedly.

Could it be that Jack was dead? My pulse seemed to stop, then raced again as I realized that a normal woman's reaction to news of death or terrible illness would not have been the one she had displayed. I was Jack's kinswoman and her nearest woman friend—she would have turned to me with the news, have clung instinctively to me in our common sorrow.

No, it was something else—something perhaps worse than death—to her—which had sent her to cover like a wounded animal. All I could do, though I longed to go to her, was to stand aside, protect her solitude and attend to the duties which she had left behind her.

Junior Asks a Question

The door behind me opened quietly, and Junior and Roderick came tiptoeing out. I smiled to myself as I contrasted their entrance with the noisy demonstration of the Christmas celebration of a happy home.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MURTIMEN LEWIS

FRIDAY, and a week from next Tuesday will be St. Patrick's birthday, and if it happened on Saturday it would be a holiday. It was warm and bummy when I let jubilee down by the rope in my test and when I was putting on my short britches I was thinking about my father, sending my mother away because she was nervous about the noise I made with the cans, like someone stomping up the cellar stairs, and I was thinking I would ask my father to let me go along, and then I knew he wouldn't do it, because I would have to go to school, and anyhow it wouldn't be right for me to go away on a trip because of a trick I had played. It would be like stealing, so I must use my mind. I wouldn't ask him. He wouldn't let me anyhow. Then I went down and got the pail and when I got out to the barn with Jubilee most of the bunch was there, and the Lost Bag of Tripe had hammered roofing nails into our barn so that the head of them spelled his name, and I asked him who he thought he was to go and ruin our barn like that. I told him if he didn't have them nails out of there and hammered in to make my name by the time I had got done milking I would write my name on his nose, so he was busy all the time I was feeding and milking the cows, and just before I finished he told me it was finished, so when I got up and hung up the milk stool I went to look at it, and the heads of the nails spelled "MUTT," and when I looked around for the dirty crook he had faded. He knewed he couldn't monkey with me and get away with it. When the bell rang and we all went in school he was already in his seat. When I had got out down I covered up my face at him, and he pulled a big apple out of his pocket and reached it toward me, but I looked away. The next time he offered it to me I looked away again, but when he offered it to me again I took it, and just then the teacher said: "You may bring it to me, Thomas Aristides." So I took it and put it on my desk.

I was glad and when I went home I found that my father had written my name on his nose, and he pulled a big apple out of his pocket and reached it toward me, but I looked away. The next time he offered it to me I looked away again, but when he offered it to me again I took it, and just then the teacher said: "You may bring it to me, Thomas Aristides." So I took it and put it on my desk.

Marion Concern Expands as Business Increases

Makers of Auto Tow Bar Report Boost in Orders; "Cannon Ball" Baker Indorses Appliance After Record Run from Columbus to Marietta.

An expansion of the assembly rooms at 123 Edwards street to meet orders for increased business was announced today by Charles E. Cox, president of the Marion Manufacturing Corporation.

The concern manufactures a one-man tow bar for automobiles. "We had a good first-half year in 1930," Cox said, "but our orders are coming even better this year and prospects for future orders are good."

Used By Dealers
The bar made by the company is thrust by automobile dealers throughout the world for use in towing a second car, thereby saving the time of an extra man.

Unqualified indorsement of the bar is made by "Cannon Ball" Baker, famous driver, who recently used the appliance in making a record run from Columbus to Marietta.

"Your White Mule One-Man Tow Bar" Baker wrote Cox, "rendered me most excellent service throughout, and is highly recommended by me to all motorists."

The indorsement came from Baker quite by accident. Cox heard that the Marion tow bar was used by the famous speedster and recently he met Baker in Columbus at a dinner. It was there that Baker spoke highly of the bar and Cox requested him to put the indorsement down in writing. The letter followed several days later.

One exporter recently placed an order with Cox for 40 per cent of last year's total output, provided that he is given sole control of the export trade.

Foreign Orders
"We have shipped these bars to Canada, Mexico, Australia, South America, China, Europe, England and Africa," Cox said. "Hereafter this phase of our business will be handled exclusively by the exporter."

The bar is applied to the rear spring of the towing car and the front axle of the second car, whose steering apparatus is disconnected. Its maximum weight is 45 pounds and its maximum length is 76 inches. Without the center tongue section, the weight is 40 pounds and the length is 56 inches.

COLOR OF EYES TO DECIDE WILL SUIT

Suit over the $1,000,000 estate of the late George W. Longley, Chicago hat manufacturer, has provoked a nationwide discussion over the question: Can blue-eyed parents have brown-eyed children? George Adair Longley shown in center of this layout (upper picture taken when a boy, lower picture taken recently), is fighting in a Chicago court to break the Longley will and seeks to prove that by scientific laws of inheritance he could have been the child of George W. Longley and his first wife, at left in layout. His eyes are brown; they were both blue-eyed. At right are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green of Janesville, Wis., who reared George Adair Longley. From these people, George says, he learned that he was really the son of the hat manufacturer by his first wife. He says he learned from the Greens that when an infant he had been given into their care and did not know his true relation to the Greens until years later.

PREFERS AMERICAN TO PRINCE OF WALES

Mary Jane Kane, the New York interior decorator who wouldn't break a dance with an American to tread a measure with the heir to the British throne, is pictured on the sands of La Playa Bruch, near Havana. She was aboard the S. S. Oropeza, en route from Bermuda to Cuba, when the "International ballroom incident" occurred.

PUTTING THE 'DRESS' ON GIANT DIRIGIBLE

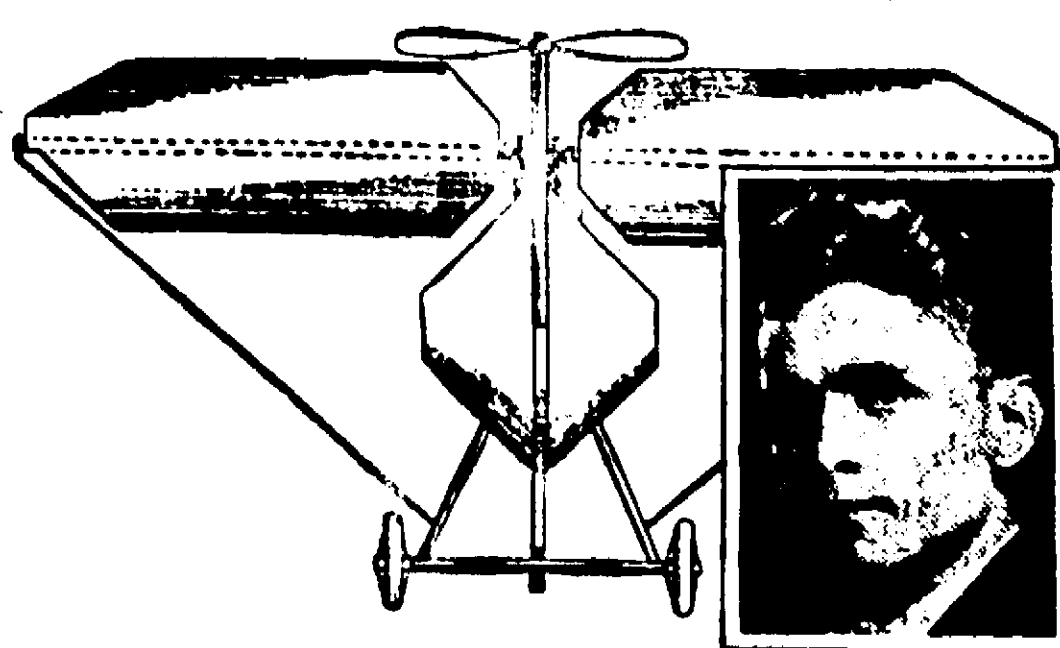

Work of putting the "dress" on the monster shell of metal that is to be the navy dirigible "Akron" is underway at Akron, O. Here is shown the covering over the nose of the frame, as the workmen started the huge task of putting in place the newly devised fabric. The Akron, which will have a gas volume nearly twice that of the Graf Zeppelin, is scheduled to take to the air in mid-summer.

INVENTION OF OHIO COLLEGE STUDENT

One propeller and wings which shift from horizontal to vertical are the innovations which Kenneth Yost of Campbelltown, Miami University senior, has incorporated in his helicopter, just patented. Air engineers have expressed interest in its possibilities, notably its one power unit, short coupling, and its maneuverability. Yost has built model planes all his life and has chosen aviation for a career. He will market his invention.

PARENTS INSTRUCTED IN CHILD TRAINING

Hundreds of Fathers and Mothers Attending College in Cleveland.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., March 6 — Hundreds of fathers and mothers go to college here to find out what child psychologists can tell them about bringing up their children. Ten times more parents take courses in parental education at Cleveland colleges than at any other institution. Professor Garry Cleveland Myers, head of the department of parental education and nationally known psychologist, says:

Most of the 1,000 persons who have taken child training courses, and 2,500 who have received instruction informally during the last three years at the college were parents. A large proportion were mothers, but fathers often came along too.

"Many parents, especially those of older children, have a feeling of depression when they enter the classes," Professor Myers says. "They feel that they have failed. When they see that other parents have practically the same problem, however, they come to realize that their failures are due mostly to common human frailties."

Professor Myers says that interest not only is expressed by parents who want to find out what is wrong with their tactics, but also is keen among their children, who want their parents to understand them more thoroughly.

The courses emphasize parent-child relationships—adjustment of the parent to the child to eliminate conflicts. Parents of younger children are taught to make them more sociable as well as create the proper inhibitions and accept the command of "no."

Parents are taught the quiet shy personality is not always the best, because children possessing it might later become social problems.

Parents also are taught the value of reading books to a very young child, the value of teaching the children responsibility, and the value of instructing them to make plans and then stick by them.

Strike UP This Band!

Preceded by the rhythmic rumble of a drum the king's herald gives public notice of market days, of strayed chargers, of lost jewels. Thus in the old-world towns of comic opera fame. While in fast-moving America . . . the rhythmic rumble of high-speed presses heralds to all and sundry the opportunities of a lightning age. Houses to sell, rooms to rent, propositions to swap . . . crisp sales messages hurled out to market THAT'S ALREADY LOOKING FOR THEM . . . profitable transactions completed in hours or minutes through the fastest short-cut medium of the age.

SELDOM does one read a book which holds their interest, has so much of charm and so much of intensive living as Selma Lagerlof's new story, "The Ring of the Lowen-skold."

The novel, which is really three, was published soon after the completion of the third novel, "Anna Svard," and is of course a story of Sweden and its people. The author, the first woman, ever to receive the Nobel prize, carries her readers through a period of the eighteenth century to the modern time in her story of predestination.

Women are the dominating characters in the three stories and the original sin, the theft from the grave of General Bingt Lowen-skold of the signet ring a gift from the king himself, carries its curse throughout the three novels.

INGILBERT BARDSON came into possession of the fatal ring when he forced the rector to toss him the goatskin bag in which it was hidden, after his father confessed to its theft on his deathbed. Ill luck had followed the family immediately after the peasant and his wife had removed the ring from the finger of the dead general. Ingilbert's joy was of short life however as death overtook him before he could leave the country and dispose of the ring.

The ring is responsible for the death of three innocent peasants. One, Paul Eliasson who was betrothed to Marit Ivansson Marit's life on her father's farm is a lonely one and practically her only companion is Martha, Bard's daughter who is always grateful for being received back into the company of her fellow creatures again. Ingilbert's cap, which held the ring, falls into Marit's possession.

Nothing more is heard of the ring until 1788 when Miss Malvina Spauk takes up her position as lady housekeeper to the Lowen-skolds. The fact that the General haunts the place is a topic of ordinary conversation and the family speaks casually of meeting him wandering about the house.

Young Adrian Lowen-skold lies at the point of death and Malvina Spauk, who has by this time fallen in love with him, seeks Marit as a last resort to restore him to health with her healing powers.

KARL ARTHUR son of Beata Fkenstoft, born Lowen-skold was the idol of his mother's life and he also was the fiancé of his cousin, Charlotte Lowen-skold who made her home with Dean Forsius.

and his wife at the deanery. Knowing his mother's ambitions for him she attempts to bring him to terms by playing him against the wealthy Schagenstrom who also bids for her favor.

Karl Arthur, who seems something of an unstable and erratic creature, ends their betrothal by declaring he will marry the first woman that crosses his path. The woman turns out to be the pretty Dancarian peasant girl peddler, Anna Svard. Charlotte marries the ironmaster and dwells in wealth and splendor.

ALTHOUGH a peasant Anna Svard, in the hands of Selma Lagerlof, is a most royal and patient character. In this country her adeptness in business would place her in high rank commercially and in her own country she was not without the respect of her race and competitors.

Her joy at becoming the betrothed of a minister causes her to forsake the fair and leave the field to her less fortunate competitors.

There is joy at her home in the news that she is to marry a minister and her mother sends her to the home of Fru Ryen where she might learn the ways and customs of those whose station in life was higher than her own.

To most persons Anna's marriage would have been most disappointing but to her it was only the incentive for more loyalty and love.

THOUSANDS of letters attest to the efficiency of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in overcoming constipation. For instance, Mr. James D. McEnery, Alto, Texas, relates his experience:

"For fifteen years I was constantly bothered with constipation. Some eighteen months ago, I began using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. From the first week to this good day, I have never had to take a dose of laxative medicine of any description."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the largest-selling all-bran cereal in the world. Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to give relief. How much safer than using habit-forming laxatives.

The daily per capita cost of operating the Marion county home has decreased to $1.04 in 1930, the report shows. The cost for the year 1929 was $1.14, and for 1928 it was $1.29. The gross per capita cost for the year 1930 was $1.04, the net per capita cost being $1.04.

Tobacco purchased for the male population cost $24.97, Porter's report shows. Fuel and light cost $4,146.25. Salaries of Porter and his wife as superintendent and matron totaled $1,999.99, while wages of other employees amounted to $4,870.90.

Other expenses were as follows: medical attendance at home, $1,420.50; groceries and provisions, $4,621.72; dry goods, clothing and footwear, $3,442.23; furniture and household furnishings, $2,721.80; drugs and medicines, $1,832.31; livestock and other farm supplies, $2,127.59; feed, grain, fertilizer and other farm supplies, $1,625.57; vehicles, implements, machinery and tools, $1,591.89; burial expenses, $792; repairs, $699.66; all other ordinary expenses $4,102.13.

Boy New Herd

The $2,127.59 spent for livestock was due to the fact that the farm dairy herd was condensed in the county-wide bovine tuberculosis test and other cattle had to be purchased to replace them.

Only $91.23 was paid to the home by the inmates themselves, or their friends and relatives.

Estimated value of the land, buildings and other property, $94,000. The land, which covers 230 acres, is given a value of $23,000, while the buildings are valued at $60,000. The other property is valued as follows: furniture, $2,800; machinery, $3,500; live stock, $3,200; and agricultural implements, $1,500.

The 74 inmates are mostly men, only nine being women. A total of 18 are between 15 and 30 years of age, while the remaining 56 are over 30 years of age.

Old age disability is given as the cause of pauperism for 56 inmates, while nine others are disabled due to disease or sickness. Five are feeble-minded, one is disabled by the loss of a limb, another is disabled by deafness, and two are not disabled.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, March 7

ANOTHER day of complication and impediment is foreseen by the adverse configurations of important planets. There is sign of many peculiar situations which may be taken advantage of to direct affairs into progressive channels but reckless and impetuous words and deeds but tend to aggravate the difficulties. Variations and perplexities may be caused by letters or writings, and social or domestic problems may add to the inauspicious state of affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of difficult and complicated affairs, which may be turned to some degree of profit, especially in new undertakings, by calm and collected actions and refraining from contention and unguarded speech. Writings should be handled with care, and personal affiliations preserved from friction and impetuosity. A child born on this day may be disposed to be turbulent, intense and aggressive, but should be trained to subdue strenuous methods and bid for success and harmony by tact and amiability.

Director Picks Cast for Harding Senior Play

Miss Geraldine Everett To Portray Role of "The Swan"; Number Have Equally Important Parts; Annual Production To Be Presented April 29 and 30.

The cast of "The Swan," Harding High school senior class play, was announced today by Miss Lucile Foreman, director of dramatics. With the production assistants, the cast includes 21 characters, the largest ever to be presented in a high school play here. The play will be presented April 29 and 30 at the Ohio theatre.

Try-outs were held this week. A standard in grades is required before a pupil is eligible to try for a part, and after the faculty had examined the list of 116 students who had signed up for try-outs, 65 were eligible. From this list, after hearing parts read every day this week, Miss Foreman made the final selections for the play last night.

In Molnar Play

"The Swan," Ferne Molnar's distinguished play of a mythical kingdom, a satiric comedy in three acts, was one of Eva Le Gallienne's outstanding vehicles in New York City.

Miss Geraldine Everett was selected to portray the role of "The Swan," under the name of "Alexandra." Miss Roma Eder will play the role of her ambitious mother, "Princess Beatrice," and Ardell Griffith will be seen in the role of "Princess Marie Dominica," mother of Keith Maloney, "Prince Albert." Hayes Newby was cast for the role of "The Swan's" sweetheart, "Dr. Nicholas Ael."

"The Swan" is an exception to the general run of plays, in that there are five or six dominating characters rather than one starring role.

Members of the cast, aside from those mentioned above, are: Marguerite Rice, "George," Jean Witt, "Arsene," Robert Bush, "Father

Hyacinth," Marian Isaly, "Symphorosa," Haver Alsapach, "Colonel Wunderlich," Francis Fairchild, "Count Lutzen," Jewell Steinman, "Caesar," Lucile Valentine, a maid, "Dianne Berg," "Countess Erdely," Hazel Noyes and Betty Agatha," Lillian Noyes and Betty Mann, attendants of Dominica; Roscoe Cox and John Sloan, lackeys; "Whitney Cookston" and Robert Stanley, hussars; Robert Haberman, "Alfred."

To Make Posters

Bert Smith, one of the talented artist-students at the school who has made most of the posters for the school events in the last two years, was selected to design and execute the posters advertising "The Swan."

Catherine Holdridge and Margaret Long were selected as promoters. Mary Guthrie and Anand Spain will have charge of the properties. Carlos Hatcher was named business manager with Harold Lewis as his assistant. Robert Ernsbacher and Charles Wood will act as stage managers.

OF COURSE THE RUBER MODERN FARMER, is furnished with a two row cultivator attachment.

Don't let INFLUENZA get the upper hand

gargle with Listerine—reduces germs 98%

NEVER make the mistake of underestimating the menace of a cold, sore throat or influenza. They may develop into serious or fatal complications. You can probably recall such a case among your friends. Statistics show that every year respiratory diseases cause more than a million deaths.

At the first sign of trouble, gargle every two hours with full strength Listerine, the safe, healing antiseptic, and call your physician. If the irritation is mild, Listerine will frequently check it. If it is not, the doctor will diagnose the real trouble and treat it properly.

Reduces mouth germs 98%

Against ordinary colds and sore throat, full strength Listerine is amazingly effective. That is because it is fatal to all germs which cause such infection. Kills them by millions in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Repeated tests show that full strength Listerine actually reduces the number of germs on mouth surfaces 98%. And at the same time it stimulates mouth tissue.

Gargle every 2 hours

In time of sickness the gargle every two hours is needed to keep dangerous and swiftly multiplying germs under control.

In time of normal health, however, the night and morning gargle will be sufficient to maintain a hygienic condition in the mouth.

Non-poisonous, Safe

The most convincing proof of Listerine's germicidal strength is its ability to kill Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs in counts ranging to 200,000,000 in 15 seconds. Staphylococcus Aureus is highly resistant to germicidal action and is therefore specified as the germ by which all germicides are tested.

Keep Listerine handy in home and office and use it full strength for all infections. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

INDIANS FACE FAIR DIAMOND SEASON

PROSPECTS BRIGHTER THAN AT BEGINNING OF 1930 CAMPAIGN

Third Base Post Causing Most Worry for Marion: Hurling Fair.

By The Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, March 6.—Although the "big four" of their batting attack appears to have been reduced by one—Eddie Morgan having decided the box and crate industry needs him more than baseball—the Cleveland Indians will hit the American league ballpark next month with brighter prospects than they had a year ago.

Roger Peckinpaugh's tribe was good enough to pull up fourth in 1930, notwithstanding a scourge of injuries and the failure of Willis Hudlin to pitch winning ball. The casualties have recovered, Hudlin has announced himself ready to do a comeback, so Peck feels he has every right to be optimistic.

Morgan Quite With the brilliant Eddie Morgan married, on his honeymoon and an avowed baseball deserter, there remains Johnny Hodapp, Earl Averill and Dick Porter to carry the batting burden. They were three of the most dangerous clubbers in the league last season. If Lew Foner, who will fill in for the errant Morgan at first, should regain his striking form of two years ago, when he led the circuit, the Indians would have enough for all practical purposes. Uncertain strength at third base appears to be Peckinpaugh's greatest problem.

In Wes Ferrell, the youngster who has won 45 ball games his first two years up, the Indians have the foundation for a fairly strong mound staff. Ferrell was credited with 25 triumphs last season.

Seven Vet Pitchers Clint Brown, Mel Harder, Walter Miller, Milburn Shoffner, Pete Jablonowski and Hudlin are other veterans returning. Brown and Harder helped Ferrell carry the load last season.

Regarded as the most promising new timber are Howard Craghead, who won 21 and lost the same number for Oakland, and Fay

Tournament To End Career of Largest Athlete

WHENEVER Caledonia High school's basketball team is beaten in the central district class B cage tournament at Westerville the high school athletic career of what is believed to be the largest athlete in the state of Ohio will be terminated. Elmer Sharrock, who tips the Toledo at 264 pounds in playing condition is the player in question.

Sharrock has been playing basketball with Caledonia for three seasons. He will still be in high school next year but the age limit, 20 years in the Ohio High school athletic association, will bar him from competition.

The various measurements of Sharrock are large enough to make the average individual wonder if there isn't a mistake somewhere. Around the waistline Sharrock measures 50 inches and his total height is six feet two and one-half inches. Just for the purpose of making it understood he is no mere bundle of fat Sharrock wants it made plain that his chest measurement is two inches greater than that of his waistline. That gives him a chest measurement of 52 inches.

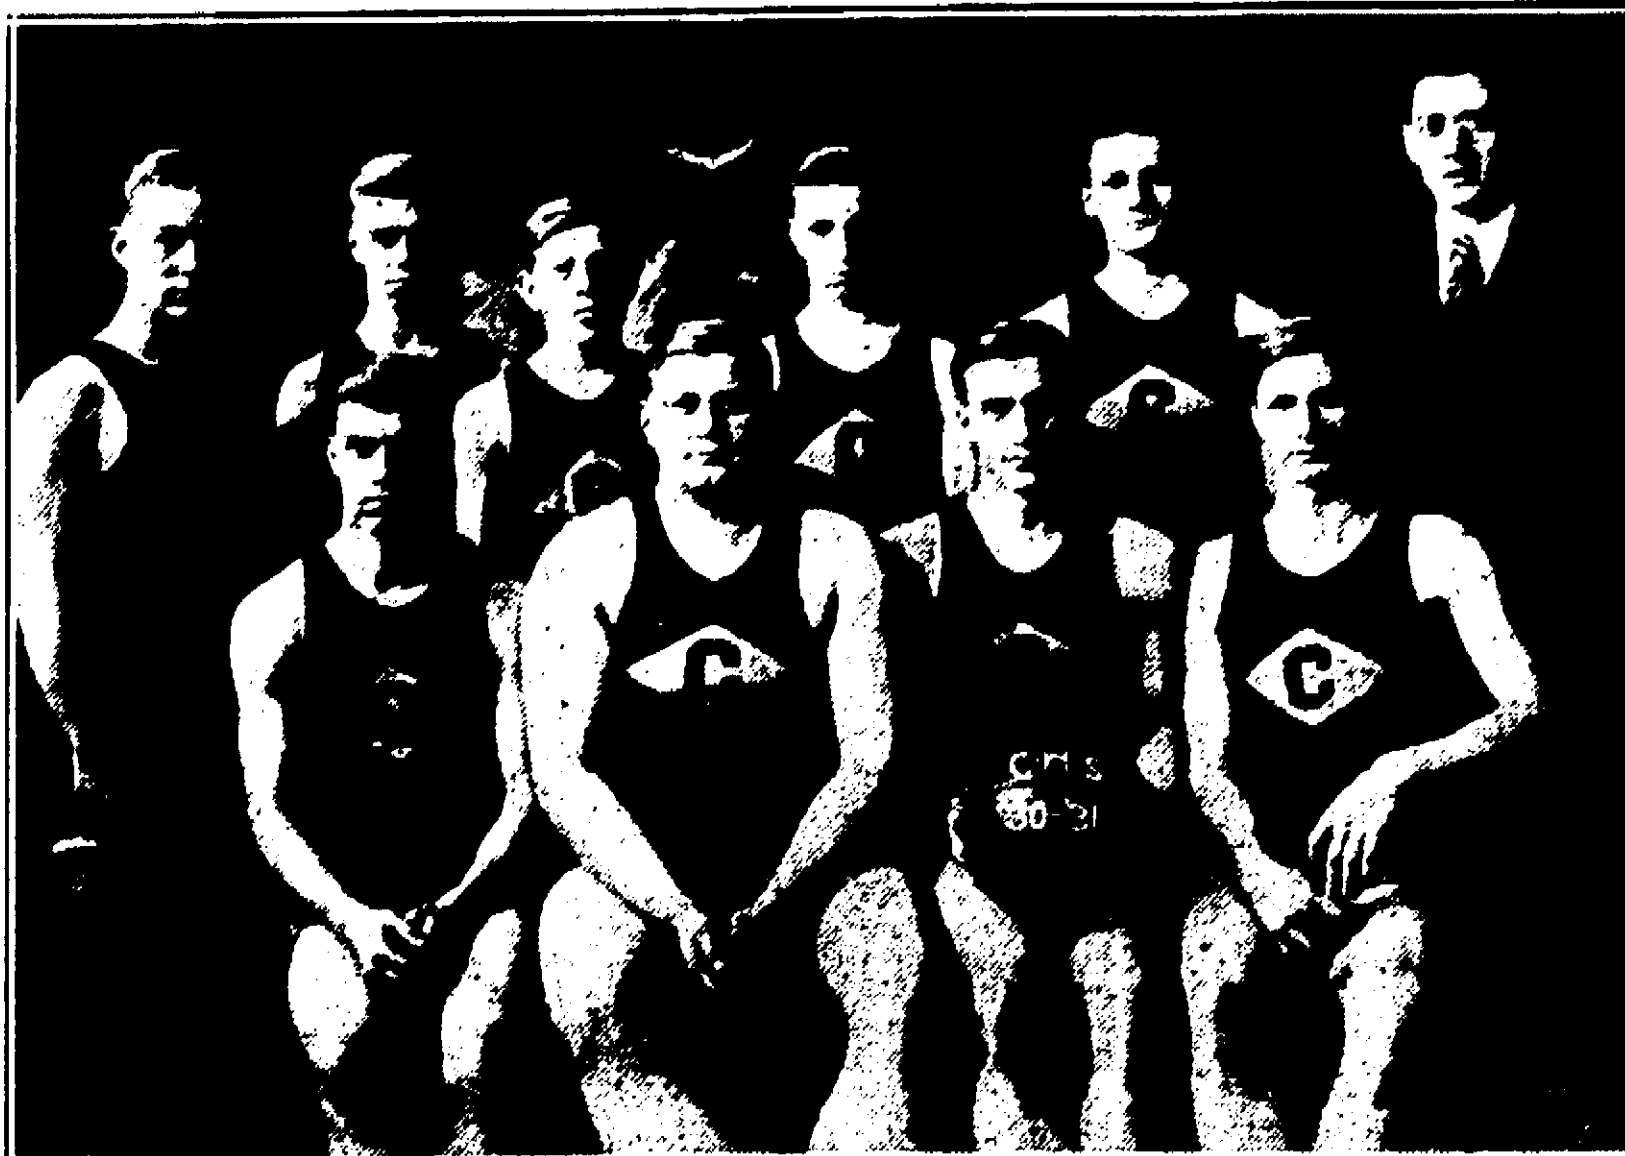

Some college football coach is likely to face a serious problem of finding a football suit to fit Sharrock within the next few years for he intends to pursue a higher education after leaving high school. Finding a football suit or a basketball uniform for that matter, to fit a 264 pound form is no easy matter. Sharrock will testify to that. In fact, he says getting a Caledonia basketball suit to fit him has been one of his greatest aggravations since entering the county high school.

NORTHEASTERN STARS WIN

The Northeastern Stars basketball team defeated the Waldo Sunday school five last night on The Star court 22 to 12. Art O'Keefe of the Stars led in scoring with 12 points, enough to tie the score of the opposition.

Will Seek Further Laurels

Caledonia High school will attempt to demonstrate just why it should have finished higher than second place in the East half of the Marion county cage league Saturday when it takes part in the central district class B basketball tournament at Westerville. The first opponent on the list for the Caledonians is Salt Creek, a team of which little is known in this vicinity.

Caledonia, led by Walter Walt, a versatile performer, and probably the outstanding player of the county this season, compiled a creditable record although it finished but second in the East division of the county. The team lost several games by such a close margin that the final score might really have favored them instead of the opposition.

Pictured above are the following players: Front row, left to right, Baird, forward, Sharrock, guard, Walt, center, and Nesbitt, guard. Standing, left to right, Iden, guard, V. Swisher, guard, D. Swisher, forward, Haas, forward, Underwood, guard and H. Burger, coach.

Presbies, Christians Rate Most Mythical Team Posts

First Team	Position	Second Team
Roush, Presbyterian	Forward	Sage, Presbyterian
J. Gillis, Christian 1	Forward	Conwell, Waldo
C. Snyder, Epworth	Center	Gillmore, Christian 1
Pohler, Presbyterian	Guard	Sawyer, Reformed
Dulin, Christian 1	Guard	Keller, Presbyterian

Teams occupying the first four berths in the Y-Church basketball league monopolize the positions on The Marion Star's all-league team for this season. With one or two possible exceptions the first four teams so outclassed the other league entries that there was little competition.

There is little difficulty encountered this season in naming the first all-league selections. Roush and John Gillis have been easily the best two forwards on the floor this season although Gillis is the only one who stands high in the scoring list.

Sage and Conwell are given the second team forward posts. Sage is one of the best passing forwards in the league and is also a good shot. His biggest fault is his inability to keep from fouling opponents. Conwell is also a smooth-working floor man and good all-around player.

Zig Snyder and Ben Gillmore ran a close race for center with Snyder getting the call mostly on account of his high scoring ability. Gillmore rates little less consideration than Snyder.

Pohler and Dulin get the call at the guards. Pohler almost single handed won the game from Central Christians, one of the leading contenders for the championship. Dulin is a guard who can always be counted on to hold his man in check and incidentally came through with a few extra points where his team needs the scores.

Eddie Sawyer of First Reformed and Bill Keller of the Presbyterians are given the second team guard posts. Either one might be given a first team berth and not weaken the team.

'FATHER' LUMPKIN ON TUESDAY MAT CARD

"Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech" Will Wrestle Tiger McKee.

One of the country's most noted football stars will appear on next Tuesday night's mat program at the Steam Shovel gym. He is "Father" Lumpkin, the "ramblin' wreck from Georgia Tech." Lumpkin has been matched with Tiger McKee of Louisville, Ky. He now hails from Portsmouth, O., where he has been starring on the professional gridiron. He is one of several football stars who have turned to the wrestling game to exploit their talents.

The former Georgia Tech hero will appear here in a 30-minute semi-final bout. He is one of the attractions on the card which will feature Regis Siki and Allen Eustace in a two-fall-out-of-three match.

Siki and Eustace will be fighting for a match with John Peck, the mid-west heavyweight titleholder. The winner has been promised such a bout in the Marion ring in the near future.

Siki is the big Abyssinian who has been crushing his way through the heavyweight field. His work with the head lock has gained him considerable fame. He will attempt to match his power with the well-known Eustace scissors.

This is the age when people read novels even when they despise the "hero," but we don't.

Y-INDUS FIVE SEEKS 24TH CAGE VICTORY IN SATURDAY GAME

Mt. Vernon Plays Here; Crestline, Fostoria Meet in Semi-Final Here.

The Shovel Y-Indus basketball team will attempt to hang up a new record of total wins for a single season Saturday night on the Steam Shovel court when it clashes with the Mt. Vernon Y team. The Marion five added this game to its home schedule after it was announced to have concluded its home schedule with Cleveland here last week-end.

Last year the Y-Indus was victorious in 23 games. To date this season the locals have won 23 and still have several remaining on the schedule. A victory Saturday night over the Mt. Vernon would give the Y-Indus a new record.

Mt. Vernon is coming here with high hopes of extending a 12 game winning streak into 13 straight victories. However the chances of their accomplishing this is slim, inasmuch as they have not met the same class of opposition as has the Marion five.

The second game of the triple program arranged for the Shovel Saturday will see Fostoria clash with Crestline in a game that will decide the championship of the Northwest Ohio class B Y. M. C. A. championship. These two teams are the only two entered in the championship play.

The preliminary game of the evening will see the Spartan A. C. of Marion matched with the Mt. Vernon H. Y. team. This game will start at 7 p. m. followed an hour later by the Fostoria-Crestline encounter. The Y-Indus-Mt. Vernon game will be the last on the schedule.

CARNERA WINS

Maloney Loses Verdict Amid Boos of Meager Fight Audience.

By The Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., March 6.—The mystery of just how good Primo Carnera is as a heavyweight fighter was on much nearer solution today as a result of the financially unsuccessful battle of the cracked rib.

Nevertheless, the ponderous puncher from Italy, as a result of gaining the referee's decision over Jimmy Maloney of Boston in ten rounds, last night, moved in the general direction of a championship match later this year with the winner of this year's Stirling-Schmeling title contest.

Carnera had an effective left hand. He staggered Maloney in the first, second and eighth rounds. He showed no inclination or ability to use his right at all, except as a blocking instrument. For the most part he was out-footed, outboxed and outcuffed.

Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland of Detroit showed no hesitation in lifting Carnera's glove in token of victory, basing his decision on Primo's aggressiveness and more effective punching when the blows connected.

DETOURS LINE ROAD TO MOVIES

By International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—The road to Hollywood has many detours.

Those star-bound regiments of men and women usually travel through many fields before they reach the main highway.

In the stellar firmament of movie Carlins and Emperors we find an array of ex-butchers, bakers and candlestick makers, chorines, waitresses and shop girls. A bird's-eye view of the early beginnings of royalty in the kingdom of Hollywood shows pretty clearly that stardom is rarely predestined. It's mostly made of chance and hard work, disappointments and variety.

The male, of course, leads the female in the variety phase of "former occupations," for, after all, this is a man-made world.

ALEXANDER GRAY, who found his place in the Milky Way of the cinema colony when the audible films became popular, has covered a great deal of ground on the big trail of fame. His first job was waiting on tables and heaving coal into a furnace. In his spare time he would exercise his vocal chords and imagine that he was a swash-buckling troubadour singing to some little and languorous lady leaning on a balcony.

Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic" was rehearsing on the Amsterdam Roof. He was given a try-out for the principal role and got it. And we all know the rest.

Anna Q. Nilsson came to this country from Sweden at the age of 13, and began her career as a nursemaid. She knew what it meant to work hard and live with-out luxuries in a workaday world. From her small earnings she sent money to her parents in the homeland. But her brave struggle through the lean days were rewarded and her beauty attracted photographers and modistes. She got enough money to keep going until she reached Hollywood and stardom.

BETTY COMPTON was a govt. actress and a small time vaudeville actress at one time. After White worked in one of the California studios as a typist for a long time before one of the directors decided she was a good screen type. Richard Arlen was a lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps and spent four years at the front during the war. When he came back, he tried selling bonds, coaching athletes and then landed a job in a film laboratory. An automobile accident helped the young "movie" struck Hammett climb the Alps.

Nancy Carroll, the sugar and honey Irish colleen, tackled poverty in the sidewalks of New York, to win a chorus job. She won an amateur night contest and, elated after winning the first prize, she went to see J. J. Shubert. He put her in the chorus of the "Passing Show" and later gave her the principal role. Anne Nichols, author of "Able's Irish Rose," asked Nancy to play the part of Rosemary in the picture version of the play. Nancy got many bruises, however, before she made the grade and kicked the ball over the success line.

MAURICE CHEVALIER tried all the trades that the French newspapers carried in the advertising sections, but he didn't make good in any of them. Finally he got a chance to be a dancing partner for the famous Mistinguette. The boulevards began to hail him as the prince of entertainers and America grabbed him for the films. Even Charlie Farrell, idol of the screen, whose recent marriage to Virginia Valli, manifested in a slight degree the height of popularity to which he has risen, made his initial bow on the road to fame in the role of valet to one of the leading luminaries of Hollywood, always looking forward to the day when he, too, would have his name emblazoned in the annals of Movie Colony fame.

Ashley News
ASHLEY—Mrs. E. R. Hart of Mansfield spent Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. B. Hoffmire here. Atlee Holt of Columbus spent the week-end at the home of his mother, Mrs. Effie Holt.

Week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Martin were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Powers and son of Akron, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin and Miss Helen Martin of Columbus.

Mrs. Ethel Thurston spent Monday evening in Delaware. Mrs. Lucille Whipple was a Columbus visitor Thursday.

Howard Bell, who has been visiting his father, Dr. J. M. Bell here, has returned to his home in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lea of Delaware were Sunday evening callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lea, Sr.

Kay Douglass of Columbus spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Douglass.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hershey, Miss Maxine Hershey, Mr. and Mrs. Devere Hershey and daughter were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Gabriel of Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Neer of Mt. Vernon were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ote Lemaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lea and children spent Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mito Gast of Prospect.

MORROW HAS THEM GUESSING

Senators Still Wondering About His Prospects as Presidential Candidate.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, March 6.—A diminutive, inquisitive and unpretendingly silent United States senator from New Jersey has left the senate guessing.

Dwight W. Morrow entered the senate last December to find 90 colleagues wondering what he would do. They still are wondering. Morrow voted, talked privately with every member and did nothing else. He showed an amazing ability to ask questions of senators, clerks, pages, newspapermen and any one else who happened by.

Morrow figured in a dozen legislative matters, but always in private, out of earshot of alert senate reporters. His votes prove him to be a reasonably regular party man.

Center of Interest. Those 90 colleagues are wondering whether they have just spent the winter in company with a prospective President of the United States. In the senate dining room it was Morrow who most often was pointed out by other senators hunching with guests from back home. Eyes from the gallery played on him constantly.

In the midst of this widespread interest, senators agree there never was a more humble freshman than the former partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. He even refused membership on the banking and currency committee. During the short session just ended, Morrow made no speeches and introduced neither bills nor resolutions, although he explained in the closing hours of the session that he had put in a few testimonials and such from the New Jersey legislature.

Reason for Silence. Morrow recently said he would be ready to return to his home at the end of his term, but there did not appear to be any real determination in his mind to do so. He found the senate pleasant but haphazard. He explained to all corners that his failure to speak was not to avoid publicity, but carried out a conviction that speeches from him would serve no purpose. It was fairly evident throughout the session that the 1886 Presidential boom in his behalf was somewhat embarrassing. He did not like to discuss the matter.

What Morrow did enjoy talking about was prohibition. On any occasion, he would speak his mind on the subject.

WOMAN, 91, DIES

Mrs. Rose Fink, Pioneer Kenton Resident, Passes Away.

KENTON, March 6.—The life of one of Kenton's pioneer residents was brought to a peaceful close Thursday when death claimed Mrs. Rose Fink.

Mrs. Fink was born in Thonon, Switzerland on February 12, 1840 and came to the United States in the year 1857 shortly after her arrival in this country she moved to Hardin County where she has since lived. At the time of her death she was 91 years old.

She was a member of the St. Johns Evangelical church and was the church's oldest living member. Mrs. Fink was united in marriage to John Fink, Sr. on April 5, 1864. He died on July 24, 1908.

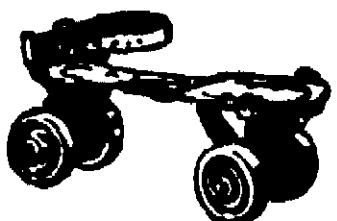

Funeral services will be conducted from the late home Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. with Rev. H. E. Pfister, pastor of the St. Johns church in charge. Burial will be made in Grove cemetery.

AFTER TWO YEARS "JACK" IS MYSTERY

Victim Fails To Regain Memory; Lives at County Home.

Sheriff J. J. Francis early in 1923, and "Jack" was the county home.

Independent Matt Porter was asked to keep the aged victim, but he did so, hoping the man eventually would identify.

Found Along Road

A reporter of The Times memory dates back to Thanksgiving of 1923
and himself in a farmhouse where, he said, the man he had found him
was conscious in the road with
a scar on the back of his head.

The man was struck by a car, whether he was attacked or not is unknown. He gained sufficient strength one day to walk, but he was expecting to return
to his home, but a passing
car stopped, asked him if he was the man, and the man consented. From

RESINOL "HEALED EVERY PIMPLE"

Writes Miss Klug

"For some years I have had a rough and pimply skin. I tried many kinds of skin lotions and creams, but none of them seemed to do any good. One day I saw your advertisement for Resinol
Ointment and sent for a sample.
The results were so good, I bought a full size jar. It cleared away the redness and roughness, and healed every pimple. Now I always keep a jar on hand, and am glad to pass
along a good word for Resinol."

(Signed) Miss Julia Klug, Loyal, Wis.

dermined skin today to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap—the treatment

inol Co., Baltimore, Md.

Davenport he wandered about Illinois, Indiana, and finally came to Ohio. At Lima he met the salesman who brought him to Marion.
The accident which made "Jack"
a victim of amnesia seems only
to have robbed him of his memory
for names and places, for otherwise his mental condition appears to be good. He is quick to grasp the intent of questions asked him,
and his answers are very rational.

Habits formed in his early life
haven't left him, and one day in the spring of 1929 he surprised Superintendent Porter by assisting in the painting of a barn. He wielded a paint brush easily and also mixed various paints in such a manner that Porter asked him
where he had learned the trade.

"I don't know," the man answered. "It just seems as though I've done this somewhere before."
"Jack" doesn't remember if he has a wife, if he ever had one or if he ever had any children. All questions along this line bring only a puzzled look to his face, and he has only one answer, "I don't know."

Seems to Remember

"When some of the boys out here
talk about places where they've been, I seem to remember the same places, but I can't recall whether I've been there," according to the man of mystery. "When they describe the Bowery in New York, the Brooklyn Bridge, the Woolworth building, and places of that sort, why I seem to remember them."

"Maybe," the reporter suggested,
"you have seen them on picture postcards."

"That may be the reason. I just don't know, though," he answered.
When western cities and states
are mentioned he seems never to have heard of them, although Davenport, Iowa, and cities in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, through which he wandered, he can recall.
"Jack" is anxious to find out who he is, where he is from and
whether or not he has relatives
who desire his aid, and with
that in mind readily cooperates
when Superintendent Porter or anyone interested in his case attempts to link up his memory with
the past.

LONDON'S FAVORITE SON COMES HOME

Flashing his famous smile at the thousands of men, women and children who milled through Paddington Station, London, Eng., with only his head, shoulders and arms showing above the top of his mo-

through lanes of his cheering fellow Londoners.

Piqua Elevator Crash Injures Eight Employees

By United Press
PIQUA, O., March 6.—Eight men were injured, four seriously, when cables broke and allowed a freight elevator to crash from the third floor to the basement at the Orr
Felt & Blanket company here late yesterday.

Charles Collins, 61, is in a critical condition with internal injuries
and fractured ribs.

By grabbing ropes along the side of the elevator, and breaking the shock of the fall, Elmer B. Hoyle, foreman, and three other employees
saved themselves from possible
serious injury.

Electrically operated, a portable
tool has been invented to cut wall
board and wood less than an inch
in thickness, with either a square
or bevel edge.

The home of a New York City editor was

 the credulity of readers may not be unduly taxed, it may be well to state that he is a

The New York City police department has

 which ranged from $150 for a beating to $1,000

A bill has been introduced in the New York
 state legislature for the foot-printing of babies.
 It's easy to see how such a bill might be boosted as one to reduce unemployment. It couldn't help, were it enacted into law, but give a lot of minor patriots jobs.

A Los Angeles aviator, in making a parachute leap out there, dropped 15,265 feet before pulling the string to release his para-

 9,000 feet. With stunts along this and other lines being practiced, is it any wonder that air fatalities are what they are?

The corners of Chicago sidewalks are to be rounded to facilitate automobile traffic. As imitation is said to be the most sincere form
 of flattery, we of Marion might feel cheery,
 were it not that the speed at which many automobilists are turning corners here which have been rounded may cause them to be restored to their original proportions to protect the lives of pedestrians.

Less Receipts, More Expenditures.
 Judging by the figures given out in Washington the week, Mr. Mellon had good reason to express concern over the treasury outlook
 and warn congress of the need of curbing expenditures.

For the first eight months of the fiscal year,
 1931—July 1, 1930, to March 1 of the present
 year—the total receipts of the government
 were $2,098,426,000, a decrease of $268,890,000
 from the receipts of the corresponding period
 in the fiscal year, 1930, while the ordinary expenditures amounted to $2,312,009,000, an increase of $143,583,000. Including sums applied to debt reduction, the total expenditures
 of the eight-month period were $2,406,304,000,
 a reduction of $183,000,000 from the total expenditures of the same period in the last fiscal year, due to the fact that sinking fund operations were less by $228,500,000.

The decrease in receipts for the eight-month period was all up and down the line. Customs receipts were $238,299,500, a falling-off of $121,128,000; income taxes were $1,171,431,000,
 a drop of $81,203,000, and miscellaneous internal revenue items were $379,701,000, a decrease of $38,679,000.

An unfortunate phase of the situation is that a grand finish can not be anticipated during the last four months of the fiscal year, as there are bound to be substantial reductions
 in the March quarterly payments of income
 and corporation taxes due to the business depression of last year. The treasury estimate is that these payments will be somewhat over $400,000,000, or more than $100,000,000 less than the March payments of 1930.

It may be interesting in this connection to state that the first day of the present month
 the public debt was $18,230,604,000, which means that it was increased $68,816,000 during last month.

Considering this marked falling-off in recepts and the increased expenditures already met and those soon to be met owing to various measures enacted by congress to meet situations out of the ordinary with which all of us
 are familiar, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was well within the bounds of fact in the statements made by him to congress regarding treasury conditions at this time and the outlook for the future.

The Muscle Shoals Veto.

In vetoing the bill for government operation
 of power and nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals,
 this week, President Hoover not only set out
 at length the reasons which impelled him to take that action, but also offered a constructive plan for the operation of the plants which would not be subject to the chief objections
 set out by him in the plan proposed in the bill.

The President's suggestion was that congress
 vest in a commission composed of representatives of the states of Alabama and Tennessee,
 the corps of engineers of the army and national farm organizations, full authority to use the plants in the interests of the local community
 and agriculture generally.

By way of objection to the bill, the President said that the Muscle Shoals project as it stands today is obsolete, denominating it a wartime relic; that its present power valuation, owing to depreciation, was $42,000,000
 and that to put it into shape for capacity operation for the production of power would require an expenditure of $65,000,000 making a total investment of $127,000,000, on which basis it could not be operated at less than an average yearly loss of $2,500,000, and that to bring the nitrate plant up to date would probably cause an additional expenditure of $15,000,000. He further held that no chemical industry can be successfully conducted by the government
 and that the requirement of the bill for the appointment of directors in sympathy with the project necessitates the selection of men for their beliefs rather than for their experience
 and competency.

It is the President's opinion, as expressed in his veto message, that the government should not go into business in competition with its citizens save in cases of national emergency,
 and he set out that this particular bill squarely
 raised the issue of federal ownership and operation of power and manufacturing enterprises, not as a minor by-product, but as a major project. He held that the power problem is not to be solved by the federal government going into the power business or by the project proposed in the bill; that the bill, distinctly proposes to enter the field of powers
 reserved for the states and that the real development of the resources of the Tennessee valley can be accomplished only by the people of the valley themselves.

Now if these opinions, beliefs and statements
 are not well based, it must be admitted that their lack of proper foundation should be a matter of easy demonstration, yet if there has been such a demonstration it has escaped our attention. If, however, they can be shown to lack foundation, it seems to us that there should be just as free admission of the wisdom of the President in vetoing the proposed legislation and thereby blocking for the present, at least, the manifest purpose of the radical element in congress to gain a foothold by which to accomplish government operation of all public utilities and manufacturing enterprises meeting nation-wide needs.

British submarine officers are attacking Sir
 Hubert Wilkins' projected submarine trip under the polar ice as "foolhardy." Come to think of it, do not the great majority of the projects
 in which the adventurous of today engage come under that head?

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, seer of Zion City, just back from a trip around the earthly panacea,
 says that the Einstein theory is "pure bunk."
 It's really a pity that our great students of the universe can't get nearer together on the mysteries of the heavens.

Very high tides swept the New England
 coast a few days ago, the maximum being thirteen feet and eight inches. A thirteen-foot tide would not be considered so much in the Bay of Fundy, but on the New England
 coast a tide like that means property loss of great proportions.

During the last three weeks the licenses have been taken from 956 motorists in New York state. The Empire state very evidently is interested in the protection of the people of that political division, be they motorists or pedestrians.

Michigan's death penalty bill has been signed by Governor Wilbur M. Brucker and is to be submitted to a popular referendum early next month. There are indications that the people of Michigan have about decided that first degree murder can not be curbed by prison sentences, the sob-sisters to the contrary.

Four of the important witnesses for the state in the trial of Gangster William J. White up in Chicago on a charge of murder have mysteriously disappeared, which, it may be said, is much the way of witnesses unfriendly
 to gangland up in Chicago.

The new quarter is to bear the head of Washington upon its face in honor of the 200th anniversary of his birth. It must not be assumed, however, that the honors to be paid to the memory of "The Father of His Country"
 next year will be limited to the coining of a new two-bit piece. With the possible exception of the celebration of our centennial as a nation, the Washington celebration will be the most notable in the history of the country.

Al Capone objected to the use of the word,
 "Scarface," in the warrant for his arrest, and it was eliminated. The law has no business to take such a liberty with the name of a notable citizen, and the authorities out in Chicago should have appreciated that fact.

The people of the Irish Free State are putting their money into savings certificates at such a rate that the government has an over supply of money. Can it be that they haven't any legislative patriots over there with a mania
 for the expenditure of public funds?

The court of appeals out in St. Louis, Missouri, has set aside a $2,500 verdict returned against his employer and in favor of an employee for damages sustained by the latter when he endeavored to accelerate the movement of
 a call into a truck by twisting the call's tail.
 The higher court held that the injuries sustained by the employee were due to a "tactical error" in standing directly behind the call
 when twisting its tail, whereas the most commonplace judgment on his part would have prompted standing to one side. In a word, one is not permitted to profit financially from one's own folly.

Editorial Opinion.

UNEMPLOYMENT'S CURE.

In any discussion of compulsory unemployment insurance it is well to keep in mind that the problem it is designed to solve is psychological as well as material. The idle worker, to be sure, should be saved from want, but he should also be saved from the loss of his industrial initiative. "For what is a man profited," to quote the New Testament, "if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

The mere supply of money, from whatever source and under whatever guise, can not fill the bill. Whether it comes from the state or the employer, or from a fund to which both have contributed together with the worker
 himself, and whether it is called insurance or charity or a dole, its effect is bound to be demoralizing. It provides security without labor, supports the notion, to which human nature
 is prone, that society owes the individual a living, and hence discourages change of occupation, migration to new areas or any effort beyond the minimum to pull an ear in the industrial boat. One has to consider the inertia of the unemployed masses in Great Britain to appreciate how demoralizing is the influence of even
 a pittance when distributed in lieu of earnings.

All of which has a bearing on the introduction in Albany of a bipartisan measure framed
 by Senator Mautick and Assemblyman Steingut with the aid of the American Association for Labor Legislation. This bill would compel the employers of the state to set aside a fund in each case, representing a small fixed percentage of their pay rolls, from which their employees, when "involuntarily unemployed,"
 could draw not to exceed $10 a week each for a period limited to thirteen weeks in a year.
 The difficulties of its administration may be imagined and also the burden the bill would impose on seasonal industries, but the main objection to it is that it already cited against every system of payment for idleness.

Somewhere in his book entitled "Business Activity," Donahue of the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard, makes
 the point that "the only sound remedy for unemployment is work." It is not a new point, of course, but it needs constant repetition. He insists that society should insure the worker
 not against want alone, but against idleness.
 The limitations of space prevent a discussion
 of his proposal in detail—it provides in the main for an elastic expansion and contraction
 of public works—but the reader will grasp the essential difference in principle between the scheme that guarantees security through pay
 and one that guarantees it through work, and he will agree that the latter offers obvious advantages.

There are plenty of obstacles to putting such a scheme as Professor Donahue's in successful operation, but are they any less superable than those which so far have doomed the more conventional type of unemployment insurance? In any event, while society is experimenting in the uncharted waters of Great Britain to adjust its energies to finding, not a palliative whose ultimate effect is simply an aggravation of the disease, but a cure based on sound principle and common sense?—New York Herald Tribune.

Another Lincoln-Galloway Letter.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.
 Judge Tod R. Galloway, formerly head of the Franklin county probate court and long a prominent Ohioan, who removed to New York City, was much interested one evening in an address by a former member of congress from that state. When the speaker had finished, Judge Galloway moved a vote of thanks and in doing so told of his own collection of Lincoln letters which had come into his hands
 through his father, the late Samuel Galloway,
 congressman from the Franklin county, Ohio
 district, and prominent in public life in the years when Lincoln was coming prominently
 before the nation.

When Judge Galloway had concluded his oration of the evening, the first speaker asked:
 "Was the Hon. Samuel Galloway your father?"
 When told that he was, the speaker replied:
 "Well this is most remarkable. The only letter I brought with me tonight which I intended to use in my address but overlooked, is one from Mr. Lincoln to your father, written just after the Chicago convention—which had nominated Mr. Lincoln for the presidency—and he proceeded to read it.

It was a letter that Judge Galloway had never heard of before—one of Mr. Lincoln's letters to his father that got away from him
 in some way. It dealt with a "Life of Lincoln" that had been prepared for campaign uses, to which Mr. Galloway had evidently taken exceptions and written his views regarding the book to the candidate. Mr. Lincoln's reply is in characteristic style, saying, among other things, that if the people believed the book,
 the convention had better reassemble and un-
 nominate him.

Cauterize Rat Bites.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A great advancement in public health
 would follow the complete extermination of rats. It is important to destroy these pests because they are a menace to health, as well as to property.

Rats could be done away with completely if
 a systematic and sustained campaign of extermination were undertaken. Too little attention is given these carriers of filth and disease.

"Rat-bite fever" is a disease caused by the bite of these animals. It has been known in China and Japan for several centuries. We frequently see the disease in this country. It is quite common in districts where rats are prevalent and the hygiene is poor.

Ordinarily, the first sign of the disease does not appear until about five weeks after the bite. The wound, which has healed, has in the meantime become red and swollen. The disease may break down and an ulcer forms. Following this, there is a sudden chill, and then a fever which lasts three or four days.

The first attack of fever disappears, but soon it is followed by another fever, which lasts a few days. During the period of the fever, the patient is very ill, complaining of pain in the muscles and joints. At times the sufferer may become delirious.

There may be an interval of a few days to
 a few weeks before there is another attack.
 These experiences are repeated and the trouble
 may continue for several months or years, an attack occurring every once in a while.

The disease is not a fatal one, but it is of great economic importance. It is a weakening disease, causing great loss of time from work.
 It greatly lowers the body resistance, and increases the susceptibility to other diseases.

The cause of the disease has been traced to a microscopic organism. The germ is called the "apiochaeta morsus moris." These are terribly big words used to designate an ailment
 traced to this household pest. The organisms
 are found in the blood of the rat and transmitted to man by the bite.

The wound caused by a rat bite should be cauterized immediately. Treatment by a physician should not be delayed. In treating this condition specific drugs are used. They are injected in the veins of the patient.

If you live near a building infested with rats, immediately report it to the Board of Health. The officials will take the necessary measures for their destruction.

Is the Universe Growing?

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The history of science is full of classic examples in which the theoretic is confounded by the obstinate recalcitrance of facts. The great scientist, giving free reign to his imagination,
 formulates a theory of beautiful proportions
 and inner harmony. After a while new facts or groups of new facts are discovered which refuse to fit into the theory. The new facts
 do not dovetail with the products of human imagination. Once more, the mind must set
 to work to rearrange, to modify, the theory,
 to enable it to include the newly-discovered
 facts which so inconveniently refuse to fit in-nicely.

After Michelson and Morley had conducted
 their famous experiment which failed to show that the earth possessed a velocity with reference to a supposedly fixed ether, Einstein began to wonder if it were not impossible to determine absolute motion, by the Michelson-Morley experiment, and indeed by any experiment whatever. He noted that the famous experiment of this kind for bodies at a very velocity, regardless of the state of rest or motion of the source. On this basis, he formulated his first theory of relativity.

In a short time, he divined clearly that this
 was of necessity a special or limited theory,
 since it failed to consider the influence of gravity. In consequence, he built up a more comprehensive theory, known as the general theory of relativity. The special theory is a particular case of this for bodies at a very great distance from material accumulation,
 and consequently virtually free from gravitational influence.

One of the offshoots of this general theory
 was the Einstein cosmology, which presented the world as finite, but unbounded. Einstein conceived the world to be four-dimensional and non-Euclidean. In order to build up such a conception, he had to make a slight alteration in the equations of general relativity, introducing a new quantity known as the cosmological term, and assume that matter was distributed with rough uniformity throughout the universe.

New discoveries have now caused Einstein
 to acknowledge the inadequacy of his conception of a uniform, static universe. Dr. Le Maître, a Belgian scientist, has shown that this type of universe is incompatible with the enormously high velocities for the spiral nebulae
 recently discovered by Professor E. P. Hubble.
 Investigations carried on at Harvard, under the direction of Professor Harlow Shapley,
 show that the notion that matter is distributed
 even with rough uniformity throughout the universe, is untenable. Super galaxies, although millions of light years in extent, are themselves distant from each other by incomparably vast distances—the universe being for the most part empty.

Calculations go to show that some of the spiral nebulae at the outer bounds of space
 are traveling at velocities of 6,000 miles a second. This is incompatible with Einstein's notion that the universe is static. The conclusion which seems for the moment plausible,
 on the basis of new evidence, is that the universe is constantly growing larger. On the assumption that the universe has existed for upwards to 2,000,000,000 years, it would appear that in that interval of time the universe has doubled in size.—Copyright, 1931, International

SUICIDE? MURDER? MIRACLE?

PARALYZED from that horrible accident! Never to walk again—I still burned with love for Olga—my sweet, young wife. And yet I was unable to express that glow of hope in her eyes—hope that blazed with desire—the day she met Del Raigson—unsuspicious matinee idol.

Helpless, I watched him play on her loving, innocent nature—biding his time till Olga no longer could resist him. How I suffered—prayed for her—regretted with jealousy—and dropped to the depths of despair.

That night—my revolver. "Good-bye, angel-heart," I whispered and—THEN! Out on the lawn—I saw Raigson—take her—my wife—in his arms. "I can't let her live in that disgrace!" I cried. Slowly I raised my revolver—carefully I took aim—and . . .

What did John do? In that awful climax, did he kill Olga to save her from disgrace with Raigson? Or did he murder that sed—as yet which would blacken him forever in the eyes of his wife—of society—of God?

What almighty miracle could have come to solve this pitiful tangle of helpless human destinies? You must read for yourself BECAUSE I LOVED MY WIFE—the true, heart-rending story of a man who wheeled his way through hell in an invalid's chair—and what he finally found at the very brink of oblivion.

LAUNCH MOVEMENT TO BOOST MARION

City Needs To Be Worked Out After Obtaining Wide Range of Opinions.

Each told briefly how Marion looked to his or her profession or group.

One of the first to talk was James R. Smith, secretary of the Fremont State Co., who outlined briefly the history of the group whose meeting led up to the mass conference last night.

On Jan. 22 in Hotel Harding, 19 men met to informally discuss Marion's situation and decide on a course of action. Smith related Jan. 30 another meeting was held at which 22 men were present. Dr. Sawyer was made chairman of the committee and he immediately began work. Five weeks of intensive preparation resulted in last night's meeting.

James R. Smith was chairman of the group of 22 men who chose Dr. Sawyer as its head. With Dr. Sawyer and Smith on this committee were Dr. C. J. Altman, E. L. Bush, W. E. Bartholomew, Morgan Burke, French Crow, Hoke Donithen, G. E. Frank, W. J. Gordon, Roy G. Gareau, Millard Hunt, H. B. Hane, Charles H. Isaly, C. B. King, C. A. Klunk, R. H. Knott, J. W. E. L. Lusk, T. Lewis, Dr. H. K. Mouser, R. D. Mezer, Dr. F. R. Mann, M. L. McDaniel, M. C. O'Brien, John P. Probst, Asa Queen, E. J. Schoenlaub, A. A. Van Atta, J. H. Watters, Ed C. Watters, C. Z. Zachman and Karl W. Schell.

In a talk which followed Smith's, Dr. Sawyer explained he intended to approach the problem as a professional man, first learning, if possible, what is wrong with Marion. After diagnosing the case, we will attempt to do what is possible to remedy it, he said.

Alm City Wide

This group is not controlled by any club or organization and is not interested in the individual welfare of any group, but is concerned with the welfare of the entire city, he added.

Rev. Carl V. Rupp, vice president of the Marion County Ministerial association, assured Dr. Sawyer the ministers of Marion are with him 100 per cent if a plan is conceived to better Marion generally.

Marion, as a doctor sees it, is not cordial to strangers. Dr. F. E. Mahlin, president of the Marion Academy of Medicine, declared when called on for his sentiments. The city does not have much wealth, or a very high wage scale, he added. The young doctor will soon find that much money that should be spent in Marion is being spent out of town. We need more home patronage of our merchants, our professional men, and our city hospital, he said. He also assured Dr. Sawyer of the cooperation of the academy.

Pinch-hitting for Grant E. Mouser, Sr., president of the Marion County Bar association, Attorney Fred W. Warner said Marion has been kind to lawyers, and the lawyers, barring a few peculiar obligations to outside interests, are always ready to cooperate to help the city. In connection with the outside interests, Warner said one of the greatest failings of the law profession is the tendency to represent foreign corporations, sometimes representing large corporations in controversy with the city.

The Marion Teachers' association was represented by Miss Mary Halphrey, vice president, who assured the teachers were always ready to do what they considered helpful for the city.

Mrs. Catherine Dennis Smith, president of the Parent-Teachers association told briefly of the objects of that organization and cited the need of more school nurses, pre-school physical examinations and larger playgrounds.

Points To Needs

An amalgamation of Marion's civic forces is needed, Mrs. H. K. Mouser, president of the Women's Federated clubs declared. A civic auditorium is one of the present needs of Marion, she added. Marionites need a deeper feeling of responsibility toward the city's welfare, she said.

In concluding the meeting, Dr. Sawyer declared it is not his intention to interfere in any way with the programs of the individual clubs of Marion, or to call on anyone for financial contributions until a definite program is agreed on and begun.

The meeting last night was one of a series, Dr. Sawyer said.

Five of the six members of the committee in charge of the movement to solve Marion's welfare problem are dead men. This was revealed last night by Dr. Sawyer, who said he had chosen five great spirits as his committeemen, acting on the theory that "the only committee worth a darn is composed of three members, two of whom are dead."

The spirits chosen by Dr. Sawyer, and whose deeds and words have inspired him to work for the city's good are Edward Hubel, John J. Hane, George W. King, President Harding and Dr. C. E. Sawyer.

When it is finished, on the theory that the people and the government can spend money, but can't manage a business, the property will be turned over for exploitation to private individuals that can manage a business.

THE "UTILITY" stocks, that distribute light, power, etc., were cheerful and "strong" in yesterday's dull market. A formal statement from the White House that the government must not go into business for itself, encouraged the power stock owners.

It is reassuring to know that you can exploit the people's necessities and natural monopolies without any danger of competition from their government.

assertions that the air had been cleared to the general good.

The session's final act was approval of a financial program to raise a total of $6,000,000 for liquidation of the present $900,000 debt operation of the party headquarters until 1932, and financing the Presidential campaign of that year. It is to be raised by a commercial fund raising concert.

State Liquor Proposed

Rankin's liquor plan contemplated first of all retention of the eighteenth amendment, with the addition of a new constitutional clause giving each state the right to direct and control manufacture and sale of liquor within its borders.

A part of his plan was that ratification of the new amendment be by popular conventions and not legislatures of the states, and that each state going wet do so by referendum. The dry states should continue to receive full federal cooperation in enforcement.

His recommendations, however, were by no means radical, advocating a clear-cut policy toward business and industry to obviate present uncertainty regarding the possible illegality of great combines; establishment of the five-day week without wage reduction, and removal of the tariff as far as possible from politics by creation of a life-tenure tariff commission, bi-partisan in character.

The whole thing was condemned by Robinson.

"I repudiate insofar as I am a member of the party can repudiate the effort of the national chairman to submerge all other issues and to bring prominently to the front one about which he knows the Democrats entertain conflicting opinions," he said.

PUSH GORDON DEATH PROBE

Robbery Seen as Probable Motive in Murder of Woman.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 6.—Robbery continues to weigh its way into all the fantastic theories surrounding the strangling of Vivian Gordon in an Cortland park a week ago.

Nor is this the only celebrated murder case in which the police and private investigators have ultimately written "robbery" after the public has been treated to strange and glittering pictures of sinister crime in high and low places.

Such unsolved murders as those of James Ewell, the bridge expert, of Dorothy King, the "Broadway butterfly" of London, Lawson, another white light habitue, and of the victims of the almost incredible Jait-Milla case, have been marked with the robbery motive in the annals of criminologists.

Expert Gives Opinion

Arthur A. Carey, former deputy inspector in charge of the homicide bureau of the New York police department, who had a hand in the investigation of New York murders for a third of a century, unhesitatingly says that robbery was the motive in the Elwell, King and Lawson murders.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's interest in the strangling of Miss Gordon infused new life into the hunt for her slayers today.

The governor revealed at Albany that District Attorney Charles E. McLaughlin sent him a report on the case a week ago, adding that he had not requested it. He refused to say whether he would sponsor a state investigation and authorities here were equally reticent concerning his plans.

Hope Provides Clue

Analysis of Columbia university scientists of the rope which was found around Miss Gordon's neck produced new leads. The rope was of the type commonly used for clothing line, it was found, and the knot was one usually employed in cavalry stables to tie horses. The man who used it was left-handed. Exceptionally strong, and possibly a Negro, it was theorized.

Every session of the hearing which opened Monday drew a jammed courtroom of spectators. Many of them brought lunches and stayed in their seats until the jury reported.

The pace-setters

KEEPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartooner. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man—far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with most of the modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals." But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. They have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything—just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter—other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how you do it. Oh, yes! It's fairly easy, if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertisements are opportunities...study them to your own advantage
